HOUSTON TRANSPORTATION INDUSTRY COLLABORATIVE PLANS EVENTS FOR NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION WEEK

May 16 – May 22, 2010

HOUSTON, Texas, February 12, 2010 - Houston area transportation industry organizations are preparing to observe and promote National Transportation Week (NTW) by arranging a series of events across the city for the week of May 17th through May 22nd.

Dr. William Stockton, Ph.D., P.E., Executive Associate Agency Director and Research Engineer at the Texas Transportation Institute, and Visiting Assistant Professor of Civil Engineering at Texas A&M University, will deliver the keynote address at the industry's annual NTW All-Clubs Luncheon. Harris County Judge Ed Emmett and Texas Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples delivered the keynote address in 2008 and 2009, respectively.

NTWHouston.org co-founder and 2010 NTW Houston Chair Dennis Tam says, “National Transportation Week is an important tradition in Houston. It’s an opportunity for professionals involved in all modes of transportation logistics to come together and share information about transportation industry trends.”

Participating non-profit organizations in this year’s events include the Transportation Club of Houston (TCH), the Houston Air Cargo Association (HACA), the International Transportation Management Association (ITMA), the Houston Customhouse Brokers & Freight Forwarders Association (HCBFFA), the Energy Traffic Association (ETA), NDTA – The Association for Global Logistics and Transportation, and the Houston Transportation Professionals Association (HTPA). Representing all modes of transportation including trucking, rail, ocean and air, these non-profits represent hundreds of local transportation services companies.
